ORLAND MEN IN AUTO SMASH; IN HOSPITAL

Carl Quigley, telegraph operator at the Wabash depot in Orland Park, and Walter Townsend also of Orland Park, figured in a serious auto accident on 108th avenue, west of Orland Park, Sunday morning about 11 o'clock.

They were driving north on this road in a new Chevrolet, when the car suddenly got out of control and crashed into a concrete culvert. The terrific impact hurled the car 30 feet into an adjoining field.

Mr. Taylor residing on the old Steinhagen farm near the scene of the accident, saw the accident and got aid to the two men who were found in the wreckage, badly injured.

They were both taken to the Burnside hospital in Chicago. At first it was feared they had sustained broken bones, but X-rays failed to show any broken bones.

Mr. Quigley was hurt about the head and was badly bruised and cut about the body.

Mr. Townsend suffered chest injuries and bruises. Both men are expected to recover.

Wade H. Arwood Dies In Hospital Following Operation

The many friends of Wade Hampton Arwood who has been in the employ of Peter Parenti in Tinley Park for the past seven years, were shocked to learn of his death in the Cook county hospital on March 28, following an operation.

Funeral services were held last Thursday afternoon from the Central Undertaking rooms in Joliet with burial in Elmhurst cemetery, Joliet.

His wife died quite a number of years ago. After her death, he quit the Union Depot job and came to Tinley Park.

He was a close friend of Mr. Crolius, former Mayor of Joliet. Mr. Arwood was 57 years old. He had no children. A sister and two brothers in Virginia survive him.

A number of his Tinley Park friends attended the funeral.

The Way They Settle Election Bets In Mokena

The above picture shows how they pay election bets in Mokena. In the recent Frankfort township election, Albert Hentsch made a wager with George Bennett that Emil D. Cap-pel would not be re-elected as highway commissioner, and that if Mr. Cappel was elected he would appear in his shorts and give Bennett a wheel barrow ride from the tavern of Morry Larson to the village hall and back. Mr. Cappel being the victor Mr. Hentsch lived up to his bet last Wednesday toward evening as shown in the above picture.

George Haass Should Be Re-elected

Editor News-Bulletin:

Mayor Geo. Haass and the board of Trustees of the village of Frankfort, are to be congratulated and highly commended for the fine record made during his administration the past four years.

Cash in Treasurer's hands April 1, 1935, is $2792.05. Citizens Bank $928.40. Village Gas Tax not included. All bills are paid up to date and no funded debt.

During Mayor Haass' term of office we have had installed, and paid for, a new rotary pump which the entire board selected, without a dissenting voice.

There seems to be a great deal of talk about this pump business which has no foundation in fact. The records are the best proof and are open to inspection by anyone interested at the Village Clerk's office any day.

Another thing that worries some people, is the village tapping. There is not over one or two taps a year made at the most. Now isn't that something terrible to fight over?

One abuse that has been eliminated during Mayor Haass' regime, is that of the Trustees being on the payroll. The only money the trustees or president receives is the fee for attending the regular meetings of the board, and if they do their duty as they should, they earn every cent they get.

We wish also to commend our very courteous and efficient village clerk, Walter Pfaff.

In these days of hard times and depression, a record such as Mayor Haass has given us is something to be proud of, especially when there has not been any increase in the tax rate. It is a record that other villages may hold up as an example of high minded honest public service.

The only reason we give Mayor Haass so much credit here, is that he has to take all the abuse whether merited or not.

The Board of Trustees have supported the mayor in his efforts and they are to be commended for it.

Some people with a glib tongue can talk a mole hill into a mountain. Lets continue, Mayor Haass for another term and show our appreciation by a big vote Tuesday next. A CITIZEN OF FRANKFORT.

Sacred Concert Coming To Tinley

Tinley Park music lovers will have the opportunity of hearing the Wartburg Lutheran Male chorus in a sacred concert Easter Sunday afternoon, April 21, at 3:30 in Zion's Lutheran church.

The chorus is under the direction of Professor F. E. Schoenbohm, Mus. M., a graduate of the Sherwood Musical school, Chicago. He is a talented young musician with a special gift for interpreting sacred music. He has made an exhaustive study of chorus work, and has been accorded high praise as a chorus leader.

Twenty-six young men from Wartburg college, Clinton, Iowa make up the personnel of the chorus. Most of the members are experienced singers, and many of them have well trained voices. To hear a chorus of twenty-six experienced male voices singing sacred music a capella and from memory under the direction of a capable director is certainly a rare treat.

The program which will be presented is as follows:

Receive Byrd Expedition Mail

A number of Mokena people received letters last week from the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. The parties receiving them sent them to Little America last July for stamp cancellation. Each envelope required 53 cents postage for the round trip of 20,000 miles.

The envelopes which were self addressed bear the post mark "Little America, Antarctica, Jan. 30, 1935 12 M." On the back of the envelope is another stamp showing two Penguins with mail pouches and the inscription: "Byrd Antarctic Expedition, Little America, Second Mail Cancellation. Official cachet."

Among those receiving these envelopes were Misses Adeline and Ada Semmler and John Roesener.

To Frankfort Voters

My attention has been called to a rumor which is being circulated in the Village of Frankfort that if I am elected as President of the Village Board I will stop all unlicensed peddlers from peddling in the village. I beg to call attention to the fact that the village ordinance already covers this question inasmuch as the ordinance provides that all peddlers operating in the village must pay a license and therefore I am in keeping with the provisions of the ordinance on this question and at the same time protecting the interests of our local merchants.

If elected I will also see that all village work is handled so that all interested can get a fair share of the work. I am not backed by any contractor or other interests.

I will greatly appreciate any and all support the voters wish to give me on election day Tuesday, April 16th.

GEORGE SANGMEISTER.

Wolf Road Case Set For April 23rd

The much mooted Wolf Road case is again in the lime-light. The case has been set for Tuesday morning, April 23 in the Will county circuit court before Judge E. L. Wilson.

The hearing has to do with the injunction suit restraining the county from going thru the edge of the school yard in the Cleveland school district.

Sportsman's Inn Opens Monday

Monday night marks the grand opening of the Sportsman's Inn in Tinley Park. The place has been closed for several months and is opening under the management of Robert Patnow and George Lorenz.

At the opening, there will be free dancing and eats.

The place is to be known as the "Sportsman's Inn Tavern".

Unemployed Unit of Mokena Hold Initiatory Ceremony

The Tuesday evening regular meeting of the United Unemployed of Illinois, Mokena Unit, proved to be a most pleasing and satisfactory event.

This organization, although but a few weeks old, has had a steady growth from its beginning and at the Tuesday evening meeting, the initiatory ceremony and dramatic incidents in exemplification of the Spirit of the Association, were presented for the benefit of a number of new candidates.

Mr. Jessie L. Hinthorn of Joliet, the founder and president of the parent organization, with members of his committee, were in attendance, as were others from adjoining communities.

Introduced by president Moore, informal talks were made by the visitors, after the regular order of business, following which were music, and impromptu entertainment and refreshments, furnished by the members of the local assembly.

Perhaps the crowning feature of the evening, was found in the friendly social spirit of the members which continued to a late hour.

Much credit is due to the members who contributed so materially to the wonderful success of the occasion.

TO VOTE ON FREE STUDENT TRANSPORTATION

At the school election to be held this Saturday afternoon, a very important question is to be voted on, namely: the proposition to provide free transportation for the pupils of the non-high school district of Will County, not living within two miles of a high school which they may lawfully attend.

This also means that free transportation would be provided for pupils attending the Joliet high school from the towns in the non-high school district and therefore the proposition should be voted in favor of. It this proposition carries, it will mean a great deal to parents who are not in a position to pay for transportation at present.

In addition to the proposition mentioned, the voters will be called upon to vote for a member of the non-high school district of Will County. Edward C. Bronk of Plainfield is the only candidate for this office.

New Lenox Club

The New Lenox Woman's Club is sponsoring the organization of the young boys of the community into what is known as the "Buck Boy Scouts". These boys are given certain training before they are taken into the regular Boy Scout troop. The new organization has over ten members enrolled and has its quarters over the Amos Bruns barbershop.

To Elect 3 on New

Lenox School Board

The New Lenox Board of Education will hold their regular election this coming Saturday. The candidates are: For president to serve for a term of one year

Orman Rowe

For two members to serve for 3 years

George H. Bethell

Harvey J. Frick.

Orland PTA To

Present Play

A rare treat is in store for the folks of this community according to word from the Orland Park PTA. Announcement is made that on May 2nd and 3rd, a home talent play will be presented by the members of that organization. The play is entitled, "Wanted—A Man" and according to all reports, is a screamingly funny, side-splitting farce that should bring an evening of hilarious entertainment at each performance.

This play is built around the meetings of the "Better Day Club" a club of spinsters organized and maintained for the strict observance and exhalation of the state of spinsterhood. Nevertheless, each spinster is secretly looking for her chance to desert the club by finding "her man."

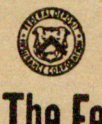

The cast has been selected and the first rehearsal has been held and Mr. Sherman Knox who is directing the play says this show will be the funniest ever seen in Orland Park. So mark the dates on the calendar May 2nd and 3rd and keep them open in anticipation of a delightfully amusing evening's entertainment.

No Opposition

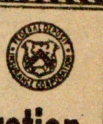

At the school election to be held in Mokena this Saturday from 4 to 7 p. m. in the village hall, Elmer L. Cooper, present school director will be a candidate for reelection. No other candidates have been announced for this office.

SIMPLE TO MAKE; EASY TO WEAR

PATTERN 2083

When a busy housewife finds a frock as pretty and as simple to make up as the one illustrated, she'll make several of them in different colors—that is, she will if she's very clever. There are only three pieces to the body of this dress, the back, the yoke-cut in one with the sleeves—and the front. Cut them out, sew them up, add the slimming half belt which ties into a perky little bow at the back, and the smart patch pockets, whip frills onto the sleeves and the pockets or omit them altogether—and in less than the time it takes to tell about it you'll have one of the daintiest house frocks you've seen in a long, long time!

Pattern 2083 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate of Nance steals. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to Lanny's apartment. Lanny tells Chief McNamara, who orders her to bring Nance to his apartment. Details of Nance's escape are made public.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

"Yeah!" A throaty growl. "Got to, Doc. Got to protect society. Stephen looked puzzled, so the chief continued. "If I let that girl graduate from San Quentin, she'll come out with a broader knowledge of crime and trickery and a greater contempt for society than when she went in. The only kind of criminal I fear is the smart one; I can always catch the boobies promptly, but sometimes it takes a long time to get acquainted with the artistic genius of a real craftsman. They're like writers, Doc. They have a style all their own and you've got to learn their style. And about the time you think you've learned it, you pick up some bird that's guilty and he isn't the man you thought he was. He's just stolen his master's stuff. Nance Belden is too brilliant to turn loose on the world, Doc. She's a leader—a leader of men. She'd make the balls, and her crew would fire them and always be covered up."

He ruffled his pompadour. "Well, Doc, I've gotten her away from her gang. She's lost them and they've lost her. And they must never get her back."

"Would you like to know who they are?"

"Of course. I'm normally curious."

"I can find out for you," said Stephen.

"How?" Dan McNamara looked doubtful.

"Nance will tell me."

"You're crazy, Doc. You don't know the code. They die, but they don't squeal. There is honor in their dishonor, and in their weakness there is a strength that amazes me."

"She wouldn't do it voluntarily, of course, but just now, in her weakened state, I'm sure I could hypnotize her. Get her to look fixedly into a mirror, you know, like this. Once I secure control of her subconscious mind, she'll answer my questions. And after I wake her up she'll have complete amnesia for the experience; she will never know she peached on her pals."

CHAPTER V

The chief smiled. "Of course I know that hypnotism is being used by advanced psychiatrists and particularly by Morton Prince and William McDougall. I've read their books. The modern chief of police isn't modern, Doc, if he isn't a pretty good lay psychologist and psychiatrist. I don't know what a criminologist is, but I suppose he's a bird that studies the criminal actions and tendencies of criminals and tries to reduce crime to its lowest common divisor. That's the bunk. The thing to do is to know their minds and why they act like they do; if you can cure what makes them go, criminology becomes a dead science."

"Yes, I know all about hypnotism and I know something you've forgotten. Your power of suggestion on a patient in the hypnotic state isn't powerful enough to make him steal or commit murder if he's an honest man. His acquired instincts of morality, which lie in his subconscious mind, are too strong for you. And the most powerful acquired instinct in the mind of a crook is that he mustn't squeal. That's his idea of immortality! You try it on Nance Belden and she'll tell you almost anything but who her friends are, where they live and how they make a living."

"Well, we shall see—at another time. Meanwhile, what are you going to do with this girl? You can't keep her here, because that's dangerous unless you have her watched. And whom can you trust to watch her?"

"How about Lanny?"

"Lanny is my office nurse and I cannot get along without her. She's under suspicion now and we've got to kill that. She'll be watched, will she not?"

"I suppose so. Even if I pass the word to lay off her, I can never be sure one of my men won't watch her independently. On a case where it would be a big feather in his cap and mean a lot of publicity to capture a celebrated criminal, lots of dicks prefer to work alone and in secret."

"Then Lanny must not come to your house again. And yet, this girl must be parked somewhere until her wound heals. She's suffering from the shock of this emotional experience now; she's lost considerable blood and suffered some pain, and for five hours she's suffered from exposure. Her garments are soaking wet."

"If she forgot to tell those men to bring some dry clothing for her to hop into, once she got aboard the boat, my heart will just about break. That would be one flaw in a perfect job—and I can't stand flaws."

And Dan McNamara strode into the room where Nance lay with her hand in Lanny's. "Why didn't you tell your friend to bring you some dry clothes?" he demanded.

Nance smiled up at Lanny. "He thinks I'm a nut, after all, Lanny. Why, of course I wouldn't overlook that detail. I changed my clothes, but when we crossed the bay it was rough and there was a police boat on our trail. He had to outrun them—and you do forty miles an hour through a mile of tide-rips and you'll all but drown in the spray!"

"Thank God for that," the chief murmured. "I'm proud of you and your friends, Nance. I hope neither of them was hit."

For the barest fraction of a second Nance hesitated, then answered. "No, they got through all right, but how they did is a mystery. The boat was riddled."

Dan McNamara came back into the living room and on his heavy face was the faintest, most cryptic of grins.

"I'm going to get one or both of Nance's friends, Doc," he exulted. "One of them was hit, and he'll have to have medical attention. Not that I want to land either one of them for this job, but because I want to give them the once-over. At that they might be somebody we're looking for."

"Did Nance tell you one of them had been hit?"

"No, but she hesitated half a second when she told me neither of them had been hit. She never hesitates ordinarily. Her co-ordination is lightning fast—well, you get so, Doc, that you know when they're lying. Go to the telephone, call up your home and ask if you've had any telephone calls within the past hour."

Stephen obeyed and was informed that a man, who refused to leave his name, had called up three times and had left word he would call again; that he had seemed very anxious to know when the doctor would return.

"I knew it—I knew it," Dan McNamara's pride in his own perspicacity was almost juvenile. "I figured Nance would tell them to go to you. And I'll make another prophecy. They'll admit they are friends of hers and that she sent them there. She's told them you're her friend and that you'll not turn them up to me. A wounded crook is always up against it, Doc, unless he knows a crooked doctor. The hospitals and ninety-nine and nine-tenths of the doctors will report to the police when they receive a call from a patient suffering from knife or gunshot wounds. And in this case the radios have broadcast the warning of two hundred and fifty dollars out for Nance too—standing state reward for recapturing an escaped convict."

"Come on, Doc. I'll go to your home with you and pick these birds up."

"No, you shall not. I wouldn't turn those two men over to you for ten thousand dollars. They're too—"

"Yes, they have guts. They can be trusted on a particular job I want to put through. Word of honor, Steve. I'll not pinch them. I just want to talk with them."

A block from Stephen's home Dan McNamara got out of the doctor's car. He had already received from Stephen Burt a description of the ground-floor plan of his house. And Stephen had agreed to leave his latchkey under the mat at the front door.

The chief watched Stephen put up his car and enter his home. A light was shining in the entrance hall, and this light Stephen, in accordance with the chief's instructions, switched off.

In about five minutes the chief saw this light switched on and off twice. That meant the doctor had received another telephone message. Then the light was switched on and off ten times. That meant the patient would arrive in about ten minutes, so Dan McNamara hid himself in the deep shadow of a tradesman's entrance at the side of a house across the street, and waited.

In ten minutes almost to the second, a car, with drawn curtains, drove up to the house and two men got out. The chief could see that one of them had to have assistance, so the driver got out and helped the other man half drag, half carry, the wounded man up the steps. Stephen opened the door and the three men entered; immediately McNamara ran across the street and up the front steps behind them, found the latchkey under the mat, opened the door and stepped inside. He could hear voices in Stephen's reception room, so he drew his pistol and stepped silently up to the entrance of it.

"Put 'em up, boys," he ordered cheerfully. He drew back his left lapel and revealed his blue and gold shield. "No necessity to argue in the smoke. This isn't a hanging matter."

He forced the two unwounded men to stand with their backs toward him while he ran his facile hands over their persons and relieved each of a pistol. He "broke" both guns and placed the cartridges in his pocket.

"I beg your pardon, Doctor, for entering your house unannounced, but you left your front door unlatched and I couldn't resist. I had a notion these men might call upon you. Just a hunch because the warden tipped us off to watch the home of your office nurse, Miss Lanning. So, while watching the home of the servant I concluded to watch that of the master, also. Sit down, boys. Never mind us, Doc. The man on the table needs all of your attention. Fix him up nicely and let him lie there until I come back. He can't run away, and if he tries, don't you let him. You other men come with me down to the central office till I see if we have anything on you. I don't appear to have the honor of your acquaintance, but we'll look the rogues' gallery over and compare fingerprints. While there's life, there's hope."

"You're all wet, Chief," the driver of the car replied pertly.

"Perhaps—but not as wet as your friends." And McNamara chuckled at his little joke. "You can't do forty an hour through the tide-rips off Alcatraz island without throwing some spray. You got an open fireplace in your house, Doctor?"

Stephen saw that McNamara was pretending they had not previously met. "Yes, Chief. In the drawing room. It's all set."

"I want to warm these boys up and dry them out. They did good work this afternoon and they deserve good treatment. Drop that wounded man long enough to dig up a couple of stiff jolts of spiritus frumenti for my lads, will you, Doc? I always warm a cold man from the outside in and from the inside out."

"Thank you, Chief," both men muttered.

The three retired to the drawing room and the chief tossed one of the men a box of matches. "Fire up," he commanded. "Then draw yourself up to the blaze and drink the grog the doctor will give you. Where's your pal hit?"

"Top of the right shoulder, calf of the left leg and biceps of the left arm."

"So he's the chap that dragged Nance out of the water, eh? He was in the rear cockpit, but you were up front driving the boat. There are forty bullet holes in the rear of that boat." He sighed. "These machine guns certainly spray things. You didn't drop your own machine gun overboard, either. They're too valuable and hard to get. A Thompson, I suppose. A Tommy gun and a Tommy man! Visiting brethren—from Chicago, I suppose. That's why we haven't met before. Pardon me a minute while I look for the Tommy gun in your car. And if you want to die in a hurry just try beating it out the back way while I'm gone."

He returned in less than a minute with the one-man machine gun in his hands. "We've got Nance Belden where you dropped her," he announced, "so while you're lapping up that whisky, tell me all about it."

"So Nance told you where to look for us, eh?" The man who had handled the motor boat spoke with withering contempt and hatred. Instantly Dan McNamara cuffed him viciously on the side of the head.

"Apologize for that," he roared. "You're so d-d crooked you think everybody else is, too."

The man mumbled an apology.

"No, Nance didn't tell me, you rat," McNamara went on, "and I didn't ask her, because I knew she wouldn't tell. But I did think she'd tip you off to call on this doctor. You dropped her at the home of his office nurse; I put two and two together and decided to investigate—all by myself. And here we are. Got any idea why I came alone?"

"No."

"Because I wanted to save you from the consequences of the job you pulled off this afternoon. I'm in sympathy with that, and as far as I'm concerned Nance Belden isn't going back to San Quentin. And she isn't going back to your gang, either. Now, you play the game with me and I'll play it with you. Double-cross me and I'll hang something hard on you, and you and your friends won't be heard of in public for a long time."

DON'T VOTE, BUT DON'T NEED TO

French Women Wield Power Without Ballot.

DOROTHY DUNBAR BROMLEY, in the New York World-Telegram.

French women are still fighting for the vote today because Napoleon believed our sex should be treated as minors. You can read that set mind of his between the lines of his gallant letters to Empress Marie Louise. He talks to her as if she were even younger than her years.

She is to be generous in her gifts to the people he designates, she is not to give gold snuff boxes, she is to be pleasant to her family and she is "never to allow anything ambiguous to be said in her presence about France and politics."

Obviously Napoleon gave his "bonne Louise" very little credit for judgment of her own or for any common sense.

Napoleon had one willful wife, and that was enough for him. Josephine had carried on her intrigues under his nose. But when he paid her in the same coin she had raised the roof.

So it came about that Napoleon wrote into his famous Code Civil, "the wife must learn that she owes obedience to her husband." And "the wife shall follow her husband wherever she goes." This was a dig at Josephine.

The Code Napoleon has been slightly modified in the course of the years. But even now a French wife can't leave the country without her husband's permission. She can't open a bank account without his o. k., unless she has a business or profession of her own. She can't visit friends or places of which he disapproves. And he has absolute authority over their children and property, unless the marriage contract calls for a separation of their estates.

American women in some of our states are no better off than French women, except for the fact they have the vote. As for that, the French woman would have had the ballot some time ago if the senators of the radical party had not feared that the female vote might strengthen the clerical party.

Since the married French woman is a chattel and since no French woman can go to the polls, American women have been in the habit of condescending to her. But we needn't waste our pity. Ask a Frenchman to make an important business decision and he is as likely as not to put off until tomorrow. He wouldn't admit it, but he will wait to find out what his wife thinks about it.

During the war any number of French women ran their husbands' businesses and factories without a hitch. A Parisian woman of my acquaintance managed her husband's tin factory. When she heard that his outfit at the front could not communicate with headquarters for lack of telegraph wire she got hold of the proper machinery and turned to making telegraph wire.

Napoleon left a lasting imprint on the laws and customs of France. But it would have taken a greater force than the Little Corporal to stay the course of the French woman.

The French woman knows how vain men are. So she never makes a show of power. While she pretends to defer to her husband, she will let fall a suggestion which he will adopt as his own. And if she deceives him she is usually more subtle in her technic than was the willful Josephine. With all her legal disabilities she is happier than the American woman. For she is important in her husband's scheme of things 24 hours of the day.

In the final analysis the French woman makes a business of under-standing men. Man is her metier.

COMPLETE LINES OF TRUCK TIRES FOR EVERY TRUCKING SERVICE AT LOWEST PRICES—GIVING LONG MILEAGE AND GREATEST ECONOMY

Firestone pioneered the ship-by-truck movement in 1918, and ever since has consistently led in anticipating every requirement in the design and construction of truck and bus tires for every transportation condition. To accomplish this, Firestone has consistently followed the fundamental principle of its founder and active head, Harvey S. Firestone, "Always to find the way to build tires better than anyone else."

While there are many reasons why Firestone Tires are safer and more economical, there are two reasons that stand out above all others. One is Gum-Dipping; and the other is two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread.

By Gum-Dipping, every strand in every cord is soaked in liquid rubber, preventing friction—adding extra strength and long mileage. By having two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords placed between the tread and cord body, it is practical to use a tread with higher, more rugged shoulders and a deeper non-skid with flatter contour.

All this provides more rubber on the road, giving longer wear, greater traction and quicker stops. These two extra construction features are patented and used only in Firestone Tires. Take a forward step in maintaining schedules and reducing operating costs. Call on the Firestone Service Store or Firestone Service Dealer today.

PRISON WARDEN RAPS "SOB SISTERS", SAYS THEY PET CRIMINALS

Joliet, Ill. "Mollycoddling of convicts by so-called 'sob sisters' was condemned vigorously in a talk at a meeting of Harwood Post No. 5, of The American Legion at Joliet, Ill., on the night of February 4th by Captain J. R. Carpenter, deputy warden at the Illinois State Penitentiary, who appeared before the Legionnaires as a guest speaker.

The deputy warden's address marked the post's active participation in the Legion's nationwide campaign with law enforcement authorities to put down crime.

"After policemen have risked their lives to apprehend and the county has spent large sums of the taxpayers' money to convict hardened and vicious criminals, no sooner have they landed in prison than these sob sisters are trying to get them out," Captain Carpenter charged. "They come around with tears in their eyes as big as crocodiles', and their pleas are that John, Sam or Harry, as the case may be, is a good man, he just got into bad company and, if you will just let me have him, I will make a good man of him."

"In my opinion these sisters are working the wrong end of the line. The time for their missionary work is not after the man has become hardened and practically beyond redemption, but rather in the early stages of the potential criminal's life in the lower, or boy's courts. If these sisters would visit the boys' courts and confine their efforts to the boys who are brought to these courts, ranging in age from ten to sixteen years, and show them the error of their ways, then, and only then, will their efforts be of service in stopping the steadily increasing file of young men and boys to the penitentiaries."

A number of Legion departments again this year are staging state-wide essay contests for high school students. Among these departments are Illinois and Missouri. In Illinois the subject of the essay is, "The Benefits and Obligations of American Citizenship." The first prize will be $25.00 in cash and a gold medal. Second prize is a silver medal, and third prize is a bronze medal.

Doylestown, Penn. Intelligencer:

"The American Legion is setting a good example in the movement to arouse the public to team work to bring about better law observance. Every Legion Post has been called upon to hold a law and order rally before March 1st as a start of the campaign for public security."

Mount Vernon, Wash. Herald:

"One drive being made by The American Legion deserves the support of every right-thinking American. This is to give preference in employment to American citizens, those who have applied for citizenship.... In hard times there is no excuse for depriving our own citizens of work and giving it to aliens."

This will be free.

The first meeting in the school year Mrs. Williams, state president of the PTA will speak here and great plans are being made for a successful year and it is hoped that the parents will co-operate with the president Mrs. Pearl Henke and make it so. Cookies and candy were served to all who attended the meeting.

This was an especially enjoyable meeting, quite witty and everybody enjoyed some laughs. Boy-O-Boy.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Hank Boldt. Dont forget.

Spring, beautiful spring. Its in the air, and it seems to be in the veins of a few of these youngbloods about town. Particularly Artie and Morey. The reason is because they were seen strolling down the avenue one Sunday afternoon with, those well known girls Ruth and Loretta respectively. Its a sure sign that spring is here at last.

But wait, whats this about—that romeo, Morey not to be out done by Artie, was again noticed Thursday night spending his time with Ryan's "Wife". Wotta man!

There is one boy in this fair village who wishes there would be better service on the railroad in the wee hours.

sident, with us. Norma Schluter has recovered from her illness and took her place as secretary.

Marie Bettenhausen served as treasurer. Ruth Ceithamel rejoined the club and we were so pleased to have her.

After the buds completed their meeting Mrs. Rogers had an interesting study period.

Mrs. Rogers told many things about flowers that were brought to us by Mrs. Dowd of Hinsdale at the P. T. A. meeting, the afternoon before.

The flower for this lesson was the crocus; the one for April.

After this the buds had a game of hunting easter eggs. They also brought hard boiled eggs and these were colored with crayons.

Ruth Ceithamel won the first prize, Dorothy Schluter, second and Joy Berg, was third.

After this the buds were treated to cake and candy.

A pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all.

We were very sorry Mildred Flannery was on the sick list and hope she will be well again before our next meeting. We also missed Mrs. Funk.

Eve,yn Oulman of Chicago and Genevieve Oulman of Grant hospital spent the week end in the J. S. Oulman home.

Vera Oulman of Chicago spent the week end with her father in Tinley Park.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE VILLAGE OF ORLAND PARK, PASSED 1935

"SECTION 1. BE IT ORDAINED by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Orland Park, that Section 9 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to classify, regulate and restrict the locations of trades, industries, and the location of buildings designed for specified uses, and to regulate and limit the height and bulk of buildings hereafter erected; to regulate and limit the intensity of the use of lot areas, and to regulate and determine area of yards, courts and other open spaces within and surrounding such buildings, and to establish the boundaries of districts for the said purposes, and prescribing penalties for the violation of its provisions," as amended, shall be and it is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SECTION 9. BOARD OF APPEALS

"CREATION AND MEMBERSHIP: A Board of Appeals is hereby authorized to be established. The word "Board" when used in this Section shall be construed to mean the Board of Appeals. The said Board shall consist of five (5) members appointed by the President of the Village and confirmed by the Board of Trustees. The members of said Board shall serve respectively for the following terms: One (1) for One (1) year, One (1) for Two (2) years, One (1) for Three (3) years, One (1) for four (4) years, One (1) for five (5) years; the successor to each member so appointed shall serve for a term of five (5) years. One (1) of the members so appointed shall be designated by the President of the Village as Chairman of said Board, and shall hold his said office as chairman until his successor is appointed. Such Chairman, or in his absence, the Acting Chairman, may administer oaths and compel the attendance of witnesses. The Village Board by a majority of Two-thirds (2/3) of the entire Board, shall have the power to remove any member of said Board for cause, after a public hearing. Vacancies upon said Board shall be filled for the unexpired term of the member whose place has become vacant in the manner herein provided for the appointment of such member. All members of the Board shall serve without compensation.

"MEETINGS: All meetings of the Board of Appeals shall be held at the call of the chairman and such other times as such Board may determine. All meetings of said Board shall be open to the public. The officer from whom the appeal is taken shall forthwith transmit to the Board all of the papers constituting the record upon which the action appealed from was taken.

"An appeal stays all proceedings in furtherance of the action appealed from, unless the officer from whom the appeal is taken certifies to the Board of Appeals after the notice of appeal has been filed with him that by reason of facts stated in the certificate, a stay would, in his opinion, cause imminent peril to life or property, in which case the proceedings shall not be stayed, otherwise than by a restraining order which may be granted by the Board of Appeals or by a Court of Record on application, on notice to the officer from whom the appeal is taken and on due cause shown.

"The Board of Appeals shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of the appeal and give due notice thereof to the parties, and decide the same within a reasonable time. "Any person or persons jointly or severally aggrieved by any decision of the Board of Appeals, or any officer, department, Board or Bureau of the Village may present to a court of record a petition duly verified, setting forth that such decision is illegal in whole or in part, specifying the grounds of the illegality. Such petition must be presented to the Court within Thirty (30) days after the filing of the decision of the Board of Appeals in the office of the Board. Post No. 725
V.F.W. of U.S.

Roaring over all opposition, the supporters of H. R. 1, the Patman Bill for the cash payment of the "Bonus," by a vote of 318 to 90, smashed their way to the most decisive victory on March 22 ever registered in the House of Representatives on a major legislative proposal. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, America's overseas fighting men, carried on this fight to a successful conclusion in the House for the immediate cash payment of the "so-called bonus" against the greatest possible odds.

When the Ways and Means Committee began consideration of the various proposals to pay this long overdue debt to the World War Veterans of the country, it was evident that two bills would receive major consideration before that Committee. Cooperating closely with the Honorable Wright Patman of Texas, the V.F.W. worked out a plan of procedure for H.R.1 that proved most effective.

Congressman Patman made the first argument on the bill. He was immediately followed by James E. Van Zandt, Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Both of these fighting friends of the veterans presented the clear and logical reasons for the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates as prescribed in H.R.1. Then came the first surprise to the opposition. Outstanding members of Congress favoring the Patman Bill followed the Commander-in-Chief. One after another they endorsed the position of the Board appealed from, but the Court may, on application, on notice to the Board, and on due cause shown, grant a restraining order.

"The Board of Appeals shall not be required to return, in response to such Writ of the Court, the original papers acted upon by the Board, but it shall be sufficient to return certified or sworn copies thereof or such portions thereof as may be called for by such Writ. The return of the Board required by such Writ must concisely set forth such other facts as may be pertinent and material to show the grounds of the decision appealed from, and such return must be verified.

"JURISDICTION: The Board of Appeals shall also hear and decide appeals from and review any order, requirement, decision or determination made by the administrative official charged with the enforcement of this ordinance.

"It shall also hear and decide all matters referred to it or upon which it is required to pass under this ordinance. The concurring vote of four (4) members of the Board shall be necessary to reverse any order, requirement, decision or determination of any such administrative official or to decide in favor of the applicant any matter upon which it is required to pass under this ordinance or to effect any variation in this ordinance.

"Where in specific cases permits are applied for and there are practical difficulties or particular hardship in the way of carrying out the strict letter of any of the regulations of this ordinance relating to the use, construction or alteration of buildings or structures, or the use of land, the Board of Appeals may determine and vary their application in harmony with their general purpose and intent and in accordance with the following rules:

"No variation from the regulations of this ordinance shall be made by the Board of Appeals unless, after a hearing as provided for in this section, the Board shall find that such variation will not (1) impair an adequate supply of light and air to adjacent property; (2) will not increase the hazard from fire and other dangers to said property; (3) will not diminish the taxable value of land and buildings throughout the Village; (4) will not increase the congestion in the public streets; and (5) will not otherwise impair the public health, safety, comfort, morals and welfare; nor shall any such variation be made in any case unless the same shall comply with the following limitations:

"(a) Such variation, whether applicable to new buildings, or to additions to or alterations or extensions of, existing buildings, shall not reduce the required dimensions of open spaces by more than twenty percent (20%), nor reduce the required total area of open spaces by more than ten percent (10%), nor reduce the required total lot area by more than five percent (5%);

"(b) Such variation shall not permit an increase in the height of structures more than ten percent above the maximum height permitted by this ordinance;

"(c) Such variation shall not permit any extension of a nonconforming use throughout a building or lot contrary to the limitations imposed in paragraphs (a) and (b) or this section.

"The Board of Appeals may authorize in a residence district for a period of not more than one year from the date of such permit, a temporary building for commerce or industry incidental to the residential development after a surety bond of one hundred dollars ($100.00) has been posted to guarantee removal of such building at the expiration of the permit.

"SECTION 2. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

"SECTION 3. This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication."

President

Village Clerk

Public hearing on this amendment will be held May 13, 1935, at 7 p. m. in the village hall, Orland Park, Ill.

H. C. MELCHOR, Chairman

sition of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in supporting H.R.1. Legislative Representative George K. Brobeck closed the argument.

The Vinson Bill H. R. 3896 was the other measure to receive most consideration by the Ways and Means Committee. In support of this proposal, only Congressman Vinson and four officers of another veteran's organization were heard. The Committee in executive session voted 14 to 11 to report the Vinson Bill. All of the members of the Committee who were opposed to any type of payment voted for the Vinson Bill. Then, by a vote of 14 to 9, the Ways and Means Committee directed their Chairman to ask the Rules Committee for a rule which would allow the Patman Bill to be offered as a substitute for the Vinson Bill on the floor of the House of Representatives. The opponents of H. R. 1 used every possible means to force the Rules Committee to ignore this request. Careful and thorough work on the part of the V.F.W. made every opposition move a "dud." The Rules Committee gave the rule as requested, and on Tuesday, March 19, the battle opened on the floor of Congress.

Commander-in-Chief Van Zandt rushed back to Washington to be on the ground during the fight. Realizing the importance of the outcome of the contest in the lower house, opposition forces sent call after call out to the field. For every challenge, the members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who learned to fight in real war areas, answered with crackling precision. Through the next two days the tide of battle roared back and forth. Representatives of the V.F.W. drove steadily onward as if following the famous statement of their former Commander-in-Chief, the late Admiral Robert E. Coontz, who once said, "No one has ever defeated the American overseas veterans in battle. This is a fight, carry on!"

Debate lasted eleven hours. The features of the bill supported by the Veterans of Foreign Wars withstood every assault its opponents could make. The members of the House learned that H. R. 1 was not an inflation measure but rather one that would cause a controlled expansion of the currency. Two billion dollars in United States Treasury certificates would be paid to world war veterans. This would be exactly the same kind of money we all now use, the only difference being the fact that, instead of issuing bonds to secure the notes, they will be backed by the Treasury of the United States.

During the debate, the House was convened as "a committee of the whole House." After three days of furious debate a teller vote was called on a motion to offer the Patman measure as an amendment to the Vinson Bill. This meant the striking out of the legislative substance of the Vinson Bill and substituting for it the Patman proposal. The count on the teller vote was 187 to 153. Immediately after this vote was announced, the House reconvened and a roll call vote was taken on the same question. This was a critical situation for the supporters of H. R. 1. It gave proponents of other methods of payment, as well as those definitely against the "bonus," an opportunity to vote against the Patman Bill without being recorded.

Again the friends of the Veterans of Foreign Wars were victorious. The vote on the roll call was 202 for H. R. 1, to 191 against. Leaders of the House had promised absent members that the final vote would not be called until Friday, March 22. Showing rare sportsmanship and fairness, the sponsor of H. R. 1, Congressman Patman, acceded to their request.

As soon as the House convened Friday noon, Mr. Vinson made a motion to send the bill back to the Ways and Means Committee with instructions that they report it to the floor without the provisions of the Patman amendment. Once more the enemies of the Patman Bill had an opportunity to call to their aid not only supporters of other "bonus" bills but the enemies of all payment plans. The roll call was another victory for the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The result this time was 207 to 204.

After attempting to substitute another bill introduced by the Honorable John Cochrane, and again being decisively beaten, the House proceeded with the final vote on the Patman Bill.

This time the opposition to H. R. 1 "melted." The final roll call which sent the V.F.W.-Patman Bill to the United States Senate was 318 for passage and 90 opposed to passage.

As soon as the vote was announced, Commander-in-Chief Van Zandt issued a statement requesting the cooperation of other veteran groups to make sure of success in the Senate.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars won an outstanding and brilliant victory in the passage of this legislation.

High Salaries

Take Money Which Should Go To Needy

LOTTIE HOLMAN O'NEILL.

About a thousand bills have been introduced into the legislature many of which of course will never be considered. Following is a list of those in which our people seem to be most interested, with a brief report on the progress of same, together with my position on same. I believe the voters are entitled to know what their representatives are doing on these various issues. Many letters have reached me and some may not be answered as promptly as they should be and the information contained in these articles as to what I personally am intending to do when they come before me is in the nature of a reply to many requests on these subjects.

High on the list in importance is the subject of retaining our present standard of public education by passing laws financing the schools through this crisis. House Bills 80 and 81 seeking to have the state make the payments due under the state distributive fund amounting to seven million dollars hold the spot light at this time. It is only fair to advise the voters that the state administration is entirely responsible for the delay in the passage of these bills. The members of the house generally are for them until such time as the administration forces see fit to call them they will be held on the calendar where they are now. Hundreds of letters have come in from frantic school people but to no avail. The budget has not been presented to the legislature and until that time the administration sees fit to state that the funds for schools are not available. The friends of schools are watchfully waiting.

Out of the volumes of printed matter that has gone over the state relative to the question of direct relief we finally conclude that the subject is divided into three parts as far as Springfield is concerned. First seems to be the method of administration, second shall we raise the amount Washington says we must have and third how? I have introduced a bill which eliminates the present setup. I do this because of widespread dissatisfaction and the high overhead. People generally do not realize what the present setup in Illinois for the administering of relief is costing. If we must spend this money, I should prefer that it go to the needy rather than to high salaried professional relief workers. The present executive secretary receives $650 per month. Numerous others with high sounding titles receive $500, $350 and many at $250. The organization and costs are increasing from month to month and the cry is more money. Without wishing to be classed as an alarmist I say unhesitatingly that I believe the system as now practiced will ruin us if allowed to proceed without interruption. My bill seeks to take the state funds and place them in the hands of state governmental units, from the governor down through the counties to the townships. Certain checks should be established so that greedy politicians may not use the funds for their personal ambitions. I advocate cash relief as better for the morale of the clients and cheaper to administer. Only those who endorse what we have will oppose my bills now on third reading in the house. I find that the rank and file of our people demand some change. * * * The question of the life of this form of government seems to be involved in as much as the tactless way in which clients are handling is adding to an ever increasing group of disgruntled citizens and making rebels against the government. It is not enough to say that they are communists. If they are going in that direction stop it by removing all grievances that can reasonably be removed and take away from the agitators their field from which to recruit.

Drivers License Bill—This bill is having a hard time. Opposition is strong from the agricultural areas who dislike to buy a license for every member of the family to enable them to use the flivver for errands. The cost of administering the law is brought out also. I have always voted for it and will do so this season. This district is pretty well sold to the plan and see benefits in it.

The bill S. B. 113, giving Sanitary Districts power to levy taxes for payment of judgments is still in committee.

Motor Vehicle License reduction. Many of these bills have been introduced, in addition to the one which I put in at the request of hundreds of petitioners from DuPage. A hearing will be had on the whole subject during the week beginning April 15th.

The Insurance Code about which so many people have written to me had a hearing in the House April 10. Amendments were offered to take care of the changes requested by the various groups.

Permanent Registration bill desired by many civic organizations including the League of Women Voters, is in committee and having a hard time because of the opposition of the Cook County Democratic organization. It seeks to do away with fraudulent voting, and is in practice in Detroit and other large cities.

Control of Milk Production by Department of Agriculture. Some of the farmers in this area have feared that the state would attempt to put out of business some of the small producers. I have to report on this subject that the bill is not in yet and when it is introduced the administration has promised that the small farmers will be due consideration at the hearing. I shall be glad to watch out for their interests and keep them informed of developments.

County Local Option bill will have a hearing in the House April 9. On account of the widespread interest in the subject the speaker has granted the use of the House for the hearing. This is my bill.

House Bill 188, seeking to force all teachers in Chicago schools to reside in Chicago affects many of our people and I will oppose it the same as I have done in the past. The bill is now in committee.

Teachers Oath Bill has been amended to include children and is still in committee.

Bill to refuse state aid to educational institutions accused by the assessor of teaching the overthrow of our government is again in Springfield. It seems to me not only silly but unconstitutional. If there is one thing on which we ought to pride ourselves, it is the ability to uphold free speech. In this bill if the tax assessor decides that the country is in danger he may step in and levy a tax on the institution which is now tax free. In other words it makes it safe to preach overthrow of government if you pay for the privilege.

Same old battle is being waged over the shorter working day for women. Employers are there with petitions from the working girls asking for the privilege of working longer hours. Other working women are asking that it be denied them.

I wish it were possible to have legislative forums in the state so that people might come together and hear all sides of these many questions. As it is their representatives must do the best they can to obey the commands of the constituency and hearing nothing must use their own judgment. As usual, I welcome the communications from the people and if you do not always get a prompt answer, it does not mean that your sentiments have been disregarded.

Growing Days Are Busy Days

Spring and summer days are long on the farm. Spring plowing, intensive cultivation during the growing season, the fight against weeds and insects, care of the precious livestock—these important things fill the farmer's waking hours. There is scant time for trips to town or anything else that takes a member of the family away from home tasks. For outside contacts at this busy time the farmer depends on his telephone. It runs his errands, orders his supplies and makes trips away from the farm unnecessary. It does these tasks and is a comfort, a protection and a convenience to the whole family as well. Every farm home should have a telephone. The cost is small.

The pupils have spent the latter part of this school week in writing tests, as this is the end of this six weeks.

Spring vacation will start Monday April 15, and will end April 19. The Bel Canto Glee Club wishes to thank Mrs. Harold Cooper, Miss Krusemark, Mrs. Martin Muehler, Mrs. Rose Moriarty, Mrs. Fred Brown, Mrs. Florence Steele, Mrs. Barney Hostert, Mrs. Thomas Moore, Miss Doig, Miss Vail and Mr. Dunn.

Some of us do not realize how valuable our two year high school is. Did you ever stop to think of the many advantages it offers us? What if the pupils are not allowed to choose their own subjects? Maybe it is for the best because a pupil just out of the eighth grade has not decided what course he would like to take for a full four years. But after he has had two years of general high school work he will have a better idea of what would interest him. Anyone can see how a pupil in Mokena would get more individual help from a teacher than would a pupil in Joliet or any other large school. If it were not for these two years many students would absolutely not get a chance to go to high school at all, even if the tuition were paid by the district. You must remember that having your tuition paid does not send you to school free; there are books to be bought, your transportation must be taken care of; and clothes must be bought. Did you ever notice how many former students of Mokena get on the Joliet honor roll? It is a very large percentage. It they do not get on the honor roll, they are on the upper quarter. Just think about this and you will see many of the advantages of our two year high school in Mokena.

Don't forget the grade school spring festival which will be given April 26.

ILLINOIS
BREVITIES

Approval of a highway improvement contract for Kankakee county was announced by the state department of public works and buildings, division of highways. Ernst Lieberman, chief highway engineer, described the project as 3,793 miles of 20-foot treated bituminous surface course in section 49MFT, near Mokena. The project is to cost $19,457.80, and the contract was awarded to the Triangle Construction company of Kankakee.

Gov. Henry Horner announced that Fred A. Tarrent, chief of the bureau of maintenance, state division of highways, had been relieved from duty pending an investigation of charges by power shovel manufacturers that in a recent award of contracts specifications for power shovels had been drawn to favor a certain manufacturer. The contract award, which brought about the charges, has been recalled by the division of highways until the investigation is completed.

A total allotment of $421,885.18 has been made to the cities and municipalities of Illinois, approximately 1,200 of them with a population of 6,286,540, from the motor fuel tax paid into the state treasury during January. K. L. Ames, Jr., director of finance, state of Illinois, announced in a report to Gov. Henry Horner. Of the allotment, $41,590 was held in reserve by the state toward interest and retirement of the $30,000,000 emergency relief bond issue.

Merchants who issue trading stamps or coupons and later accept books of such tokens in payment for merchandise are liable for retailers' occupation tax on the sales, and must include the amount of such sales within gross receipts by which their tax is measured, the state department of finance announced in a ruling. At the time of issuance of the stamps, however, merchants are entitled to deduct from receipts by which their tax is measured, the value in trade of the stamps, the ruling said.

The Supreme Court of Missouri has joined with the Supreme Court of Illinois in opinions that parole violators may be classed as fugitives from justice and are subject to extradition. The Missouri decision was handed down in the Illinois division of paroles case against Arthur Rosenberg, who, after parole from the Illinois state penitentiary was given permission to work in St. Louis, and later was arrested for a law violation. He was ordered held for parole violation by the Illinois department of public welfare and Governor Horner issued a requisition which was honored by the governor of Missouri. Rosenberg, however, in a habeas corpus hearing, was released from the custody of an Illinois agent by Judge Hoffmeister of the St. Louis Supreme court. In two previous suits, the Illinois Supreme court had held that a person is a fugitive from justice and subject to extradition under such circumstances as those in the Rosenberg case.

Caused chiefly by influenza and pneumonia the general death rate in Illinois during January of this year was decidedly higher than in the corresponding month any previous year since 1929, according to an announcement made by Dr. Frank J. Jirka, director of the state department of public health. There were 8,183 deaths in the first month of this year compared with 7,602 in 1933. From influenza and pneumonia there were 1,350 deaths in January this year compared with 739 last year. Measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria were also responsible for sharp increases in mortality. The death toll from motor vehicle accidents declined, however, the number falling to 126 compared with 191 in January of last year. Other forms of accidents were responsible for an increased death rate, the number of fatalities rising from 229 to 258. Infant mortality was noticeably higher, the birth rate was up slightly, but maternal mortality declined somewhat.

Revisions of the Illinois grain storage act, proposed in a bill introduced in the legislature would provide additional benefits for farmers desiring to obtain loans on stored grains, Walter W. McLaughlin, director of the state department of agriculture said. Rep. Frank Wilson, chairman of the agriculture committee of the house, introduced the measure. The principal amendments proposed provide for adding soybeans and cowpeas to the commodities originally covered by the act; redefining and clarifying the duties of official sealers; filing of warehouse certificates, thereby giving them the status of chattel mortgages; and cancellation of certificates after loans are paid. The revisions, if approved, besides providing maximum benefits for farmers, would establish certain fundamental requirements for grain storage acts needed to meet the requirements for loans from the Commodity Credit corporation and would benefit private agencies making loans on stored grains.

Robert Wadlow, seventeen, Alton, Ill., boy giant, was resting comfortably in a St. Louis hospital. The youth is suffering from an infected foot. Young Wadlow is 8 feet 1½ inches tall, and weighs 375 pounds.

The tornado which struck Metropolis, left in its wake a toll of one dead, a score injured and 45 demolished or damaged buildings and residences. The damage was estimated at more than $200,000. Sam Abell, garage proprietor, was killed when a steel supporting beam in the garage struck him on the head when the building collapsed.

Reindeer at Last Reach End of Five-Year Trek

WHAT can happen in this great world in a period of five years? Among the great achievements we can list that of Andrew Bahr of Seattle. Five years ago he took an assignment to drive 3,000 reindeer across the Great Arctic circle. Bahr, although not a young man, took this great task at the instance of the king of England, through a commercial trading company, who believed it a good idea to provide meat for the Mackenzie district of Canada, where there was a scarcity of food. In 1929 a herd of 3,000 reindeer was turned over to this herder and for five years he has plodded 1,200 miles across the Arctic circle and has at last reached his goal. Camping for months waiting for a river to freeze over, weathering Arctic blizzards, camping for the breeding season and a thousand other obstacles have befriended this great hero, but he has delivered, not only his original herd, but an increase for the five years of over 10 per cent and incidentally there were two children born on the stormy passage, and are husky individuals. The Andrew Bahr feat will go down in history as one of the greatest feats of man.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN UNEXPECTED DANGER

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE, swimming across the Smiling Pool to escape from Reddy Fox, was worried enough as he thought of how helpless he would be should Billy Mink or Snapper the big Snapping Turtle discover him before he reached the other bank. But Danny would have been still more worried had he known of a certain Big Pickerel, which you know is a kind of fish, who was making his home in the Smiling Pool.

Now the Big Pickerel lived very largely on the minnows and other little fish of the Smiling Pool, but he was always ready for anything else that might be good to eat. He had been some distance away from where Danny dived into the water, but he had heard the splash Danny made. It was different from the splashes made by the young frogs, and the Big Pickerel knew the difference. He would have been very glad to get one of the young frogs. In fact, he could have told what had become of a good many young frogs which had disappeared very mysteriously. But he had paid no attention to the splashes of the young frogs when they had dived into the water at the warning of Redwig the Blackbird. You see, he knew all about frogs, and he knew that they had dived right down to the bottom and hidden in the mud.

But this other splash interested him, and he began to move along in the direction of it. Now if he had hurried in the first place, this story might have had a very different ending. But the Big Pickerel had had a good breakfast, and he was only mildly interested.

So he swam rather slowly. Danny Meadow Mouse was almost across the Smiling Pool before the Big Pickerel saw him. When the Big Pickerel did see him he quite forgot that he had had a good breakfast. It was seldom that he had the chance to dine on a fat meadow mouse, and he could think of nothing in the world that would taste better.

If he had moved slowly before, now he shot forward like an arrow. Grandfather Frog saw him and tried to warn Danny, but Danny was already swimming as fast as he could, and all the warnings in the world couldn't have made him swim any faster. The Big Pickerel's great jaws, each of which had ever and over so many sharp teeth, were actually opening to seize Danny, just as Danny's feet touched bottom. Just as Danny scrambled out on the bank, those great jaws closed with a wicked snap, almost on the end of Danny's funny, short tail.

There was a great splash, for the Big Pickerel had rushed so that he had almost stranded himself in the shallow water. For a minute Grandfather Frog couldn't see what had happened. Then he saw the Big Pickerel dart back into deep water, and with a sigh of relief saw Danny Meadow Mouse pop into one of the holes in the bank of the Smiling Pool.

Ears of Corn on Stalk

The number of ears of corn may be anywhere from one to one-half dozen or more on the same plant, while the number of kernels to the ear may vary between 500 and 1,000 or more. The golden bantam types of sweet corn, for example, have smaller ears with fewer kernels than most other types and 500 would be an average for this type.

THE BUTTERFLY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I HAD been in the kitchen half the day, Cleanings the cupboards, making the room fair. When hands are busy, hours fly away, And it was noon before I was aware.

Weary before the open door I stood, Looking at my own patch of homely green, When I was joined in my brief solitude By a brown butterfly, with golden sheen.

I was transported on its gauzy wings Far from the sordid tasks of everyday. Intangible but high imaginings Captured my thoughts and bore me far away.

There was my early home, the open door, The locust tree, the garden rich in blooms; The sunlight on the whitely scrubbed pine floor, And heaven lending peace to little rooms.

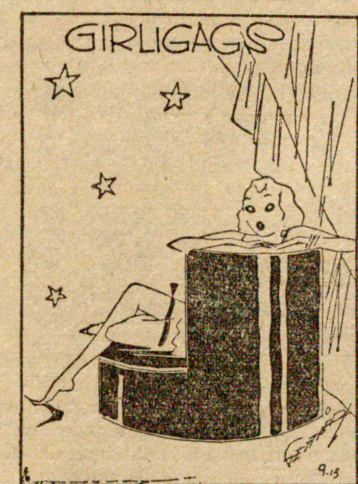

From toil there is escape. The drab cocoon Of ordinary day cannot hold fast The thoughts that soar like butterflies in June, And find their way to God's blue lanes at last.

Lesson for April 14

CHRIST THE SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—John 3:14-17; Romans 5:6-10; Philippians 2:5-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Jesus Came.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Saviour.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be Saved.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Christ Saves Us.

It is not feasible to consider all the texts proposed by the lesson committee, but it is desirable to select the three suggested to be printed and to introduce several others.

I. The Saviour Predicted (Gen. 3:15; Isa. 9:6, 7).

In connection with the fall of man and consequent pronouncement of judgment upon the woman, the man and the serpent, and the announcement of the undying enmity which was to exist between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent, ultimate victory was predicted of the woman's seed. On the cross of Calvary the stroke was made which imposed the death sentence (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14). In due time the unlawful ruler of the world will be displayed by the coming of the king and the establishment of a universal and everlasting kingdom.

II. The Saviour Born (Luke 2:11, 30, 32).

That which had been predicted was historically fulfilled in the birth of Jesus Christ in Bethlehem. When Jesus was brought to the temple as a child the Holy Ghost revealed to Simeon that Jesus was the Messiah.

III. The Saviour Described.

1. A seeker of the lost (Luke 15:3-7). This seeking of the lost is illustrated by the man leaving the ninety and nine sheep and going after the one which was lost, and his rejoicing over his success in finding it. Great, indeed, is the joy in heaven over the salvation of a lost soul.

2. He died for the lost (John 3:14-17). God gave Jesus Christ to die to make an atonement for the sins of the world. As the brazen serpent was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, so Jesus Christ was lifted up on the cross. As the Israelites only needed to look at the uplifted serpent, so the lost soul needs only to look to the crucified Christ for salvation. All who believe on him as their Saviour receive eternal life and, therefore, escape condemnation.

3. He knows his own (John 10:14). The good Shepherd has a definite knowledge of the lost ones. He therefore seeks them out and gives his life for them.

4. He keeps his own (John 10:27-29). Believers are Christ's sheep, and because they are his sheep, they hear his voice and follow him. He not only knows them personally, but they, in turn, know him. He not only gives unto them eternal life, but holds them in his omnipotent hands.

IV. Some Blessings Received Through the Saviour.

1. Justification (Rom. 5:1-11). The one who receives Jesus Christ is by the living God declared righteous. His guilt is removed and he is given the same standing as Jesus Christ himself. Because of this, the very peace of God settles down upon his soul. He has the assurance of God's love and is able, therefore, to have joy in God himself.

2. Freedom from the power of sin (Rom. 6:1-7). It is not enough to be freed from the guilt of sin, there must be a dynamic which will enable the believer to live a life of victory over sin. Being vitally united to Jesus Christ in the power of his resurrection life, the dynamic is provided which enables the believer to triumph over sin.

3. He is free from the law as a means of sanctification (Rom. 7:1-6). Christ's death nailed the law to the tree. The one who has been vitally united to Jesus Christ by faith died with Christ. The law, therefore, has no more dominion over him.

4. Victory over the flesh through the indwelling Holy Spirit (Rom. 8:2-6). The introduction of the law of the spirit of the life in Christ Jesus enables the believer to free himself from the dominion of the flesh.

5. Christ is the supreme example to the believer (Phil. 2:5-11). Because the Saviour became incorporated with the race through the incarnation he is able to impart life to those with whom he is identified. Furthermore, because he thus imparts life, the believer is able to make the Saviour his grand exemplar.

The World's Three Evils

The three great evils of the world are impurity, inequality, and hopelessness. The world doesn't know the character of God, therefore it is unclean. The world does not know the love of God and therefore men are not brothers. The world does not know the life of God, therefore men despair alike of the present and the future.

SHORE SERVICE

"JUST what," demanded Jean, "does your love for me mean to you?"

Her lustrous eyes, set in a lovely oval face, did not reflect the sentiment of her query. She stared across the lake, vexedly, and idly flicked at the sand with her toe.

Something in her tone arrested the impetuous declaration at the tip of Dick Wendell's tongue.

"Why, wonderful!" he replied, soberly.

"It—means everything. With things the way they are, my job gone, you—our love—is all I've got left. Except this."

He pointed slightly to Pilgrims' Rest, his lake-shore property, a few acres of green lawn and beach sand, with its long spacious pavilion and sleeping quarters.

"I—I'd sell this if you didn't love it so much. I'd sell it tomorrow to give us something to get married on. Why, honey," he warmed to the subject, "let's—"

"Not talk of it," she interrupted him, with quiet determination.

"What would we do after that money's gone?"

"Why, by that time maybe some one'll give me a job."

She regarded him curiously. "Who's this some one—a super-man?"

"How should I know?" he answered, a trifle resentfully.

These women, he reflected sourly, had no idea of the times.

"Some man," he told her, patiently, "or some corporation with capital, something that looks like money, something to work with."

"And some spunk," she threw at him, springing to her feet irritably and shaking off the sand.

"And ideas. And push. I'm going to look for mother."

"But, Jean," he called after her, "what can I use ideas on? What can I use for money?"

She stopped, indecisively, and looked back at him with a little pity.

"You know already," she told him, flatly. "This." And she waved her hand over the place.

"But you don't want me to sell it," he protested.

"No."

Dick wondered, then laughed boisterously.

"You mean—farm it?" he gulped.

"Why, I couldn't raise enough on these few acres to—"

"I don't know anything about it," was her cool retort.

"When I marry, I want a husband, not a cog-wheel." She turned quickly and fled towards the pavilion.

"Lucky stiff, Dick Wendell!" commented Mack Foster, as Jean joined him, and her buddy, Claire Hollins, on the porch.

"Greatest little shore on the lake, health, looks, fanciest fiancé—"

"He's still got the shore, the health, and the looks," replied Jean, dryly.

"You might tell him that," she added, cryptically, as she disappeared inside the house.

"Methinks," ventured Mack, whimsically, "that the course of true love's struck an air pocket—it looks bumpy. Looks like a job for the old trusty pal."

"Better keep out of it," Claire warned him.

"It's their party."

"Ours, too, Claire-child," Mack reminded her.

"We innocent bystanders might get hit. Think I want these delightful little shore parties to freeze up on us in a hot summer?"

On an afternoon a month later, Mack nosed his sedan off the highway and down the short dirt road leading to Pilgrims' Rest.

As they drew near the gate posts at the entrance to the back grove, a vigorous protest arose from the back seat.

"I'm not going another inch," insisted Jean. "He's got some party there."

And Mack and Claire amazingly shared her glance at numerous couples on the lawn and beach, and, about three hundred yards off-shore, the vivid maroon of Dick's boat, filled with men using fishing rods.

"What of it?" derided Mack. "Maybe he's sold the place. Has he?"

"I'm sure I don't know," Jean told him, with marked indifference. "I haven't seen him for a month. And now, let's go back."

"We will not," rejoined Mack, indignantly. "until I get out and inquire around a bit." He jumped out, leaving the girls in the car and went around the side of the house, passed a group of strange boys and girls on the steps, mounted to the porch and stopped dead.

Through a group of people, singing, some munching sandwiches, he espied Dick, himself.

"Mack Foster!" cried Dick, leaping from the table and springing to Mack's side.

"Just in time, folks. Meet the one and original Mack Foster," and he led him among the groups, introducing him.

"Where's Claire?"

Mack drew him away from the others, and they had a few minutes' whispered consultation. Mack's face registered surprise, delight, annoyance, and a few emotions hard to define.

He finally went back alone to his car.

"Come on, you two," he told them. "It's all fixed."

"I will not," objected Jean, stren-ously. "Who are those people?"

"Customers," said Mack, succinctly. "Come on."

"Customers?" echoed Jean. "Has he opened a store?"

"Yeah!" grunted Mack, grimly.

"Selling outdoor life, lakeside delights to private parties at a dollar-fifty a head. Boating, bathing, fishing, crabbing, quilts, eats, drinks, romance, entertainment, music," here Mack grimaced, "all for one admission. Come on: I've paid him."

"Paid him?" cried Jean, horrified.

"For me, too?"

"Why not?" Mack almost jeered at her.

"Why should you be exempt?"

"Can you tell me?" Jean asked Dick a few minutes later, with frosty sweetness, "where Miss Hollins and I may change to our bathing suits?"

"Jean!" Dick abandoned a group, delightedly, and put out both hands toward her. But she gave him a cool look and put her hands behind her.

Dick stared at her incredulously, then, compressing his lips tightly, waved formally to the inside rooms.

"This way, miss," he said.

"Jean," Dick greeted her, very soberly, as he came on her alone a few hours later on the beach. She started up, but he put out a restraining hand.

"Wait—just a minute. Mack's out in the boat now. I want to return something to you." And, sheepishly, he tossed a dollar and a half-dollar into her lap, then turned away slowly.

"Dick," she called after him, softly.

"Take it back. I—I've had my money's worth. I've been—thinking, Dick. How'd you do it?"

"Er—these shore parties?"

She nodded.

He again looked sheepish. "Mack gave me the idea: said he'd rather come here than anywhere on earth. I took the idea and worked it up. Figured it out there were lots of nice people in town who'd love a little shore party with everything that goes with 'em. I had what you called 'something to work with' so I worked it. I've had twenty separate parties so far with thirty to fifty dollars' profit on each one. Eats are the only overhead. Do my own laundry. But honey—it was hard. I wanted to keep this place just for my friends—for you. But I—well, I had to—"

"To make good," she added, softly.

"I know. I don't mind. I—I'm glad, Dick. And—say—does a little kiss go with the rest?" impishly.

"Lots of 'em." He started in to give service immediately, adding, between breaths, "for special customers."

Bird Called Cassowary

Shown at Field Museum

A specimen of the strange large flightless bird called the cassowary, a number of varieties of which are found in New Guinea and Northern Australia, and among neighboring islands, has been placed on exhibition at Field Museum of Natural History in the hall containing the systematic collection of birds, reports a bulletin from the museum.

The exhibit is unique in that it was prepared by application of a new departure in museum taxidermy methods previously used in connection with reptiles and certain kinds of mammals, but now for the first time employed on a bird. This process, originated and developed by Leon L. Walters of the museum's taxidermy staff, has special advantages in making possible life-like preparations of animals which often, because of certain characteristics, lose qualities of natural appearance when treated by ordinary methods of mounting the skin. By this process the animals or such parts of them as require special attention to assure verisimilitude to their appearance in life, are reproduced from the original specimens in a cellulose-acetate composition in which all natural colors, lines and qualities are preserved to an extent impossible with the original material. In the process there are used molds made from the original specimen.

In the case of the cassowary, the body is a mount of the skin prepared in the ordinary manner, but the head and neck, which are characterized by naked wattles and patches of very bright blues, reds and yellows, and the legs, are reproduced by the Walters method.

War Relics Found

Hungarian relics of the Freedom War of '48 have been identified in the famous museum of the Czars, according to the information received and include the last documents and exhibits taken from Hungary. The relics consist of correspondence between the Hungarian patriot Rakoczi and Peter the Great, with 52 flags which the Russians captured from the armies of Gregory and Bem in 1849. The flags, which are in good state of preservation, are of heavy silk and show a picture of the Virgin and the emblems of Hungary. A picture showing the surrender of the Hungarians at Vilagos was also found in the museum and is stated to have been painted by a Russian officer who took part in the fighting.

Traits of Big Trees

The Grizzly Giant, one of the famous big trees located in Yosemite National park, has a wild gooseberry bush growing on one of its branches nearly 100 feet from the ground. The unusual location of the gooseberry bush is attributed to birds having carried the seeds. Two other interesting items concerning Yosemite's big trees have recently come to light. In one instance attention is called to the fact that the tops of two big trees in the Mariposa grove have grown together. And one of the big trees in the Merced grove has a stream flowing under its base.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington. — President Roosevelt has submitted to congress a list of the legislation he deems necessary to have passed before the present session adjourns. He has divided it into two categories—"must" and desirable. If congress enacts only the list of "must" legislation and passes over the other group of bills which the President considers desirable, it is made to appear that the membership of the house and senate is due to suffer some of the torrid temperature and the uncomfortable humidity of a Washington summer.

Lays Out Work for Congress

The President said he must have legislation extending the National Recovery administration, providing social security, eliminating public utility holding companies, increasing the loaning power of the Home Owners Loan corporation, extension of the so-called nuisance taxes which expire by limitation of law on June 30, and revision of the banking laws.

In addition, the President made known that he would like to have enacted legislation to take the profits out of war, whatever that may mean. He previously had sent a message asking enactment of a law providing for expansion of the American merchant marine through the use of ship subsidies, and he also desires to have enacted legislation setting up machinery for the settlement of labor disputes. This legislation is in the congressional hopper in the form of a bill by Senator Wagner, of New York.

The President would like to have amendments to the agricultural adjustment act in order to eliminate some of the weaknesses which the AAA people admit exist. The air mail contract situation is another matter with which Mr. Roosevelt has been concerned.

Seasoned observers recognize that this list of "must" legislation, not to mention the desired legislation, is sufficient to keep congress grinding away far into the summer. They recognize likewise that if the desired legislation later becomes of such concern that the President wants to place it on the preferred list as well, the membership of congress must be prepared to forego summer trips of any kind.

Since a good many members of congress have grown tired of being called rubber stamps for the administration, they naturally have turned attention to legislation which they think will be helpful to their own bailiwicks.

To themselves personally or from a party standpoint. Thus there have been promoted numerous pieces of legislation for which some individuals, at least, entertain greater fervor than they do for measures that were drafted by President Roosevelt's official family and transmitted to congress as administration legislation. It is the general observation that an individual, representative, or senator frequently will go much further in fighting for legislation that is his own brain child than for legislation placed before him on a silver platter such as administration proposals have been. Consequently, individual or group measures are constantly cluttering up house and senate legislative calendars. This is a factor meaning delay for administration bills.

It is to be remembered, as has been reported in these columns, that Mr. Roosevelt is unable to ward off criticism of some of his proposals. Indeed, there have been Democratic criticisms and Democratic opposition to a greater or lesser degree to all of the legislation he has proposed since congress convened last January. All of which is by way of saying that congress faces weeks of committee work and floor debate despite the fact that the house Democratic leaders still retain rather solid control of a sufficient majority in the lower house of congress to drive through any pet measures for the administration. In the senate the situation is decidedly different.

Included in the legislation being fostered by individual members is the bill that would permit cabinet officers to appear on the floors of congress for questioning and explanation, such as occurs under the British and French parliamentary systems. The administration does not want this bill. It will have to exert some pressure to avoid passage. The reason is that the Roosevelt administration is no longer one in which the cabinet is dominant. Cabinet officers are only part of the scheme, and if congress wanted to inquire about the handling of relief money, which it probably will desire, it must talk with Administrator Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins is not in the cabinet. The same is true of NRA and to some extent to the AAA, although Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture theoretically is a superior officer to Administrator Davis. The administrator is definitely opposed to the passage of bonus legislation for the former soldiers, sailors and marines and it looks like a Presidential veto will be necessary there. The same is true of inflationary proposals of which there are many. The situation is one, therefore, in which Mr. Roosevelt must be constantly on his guard to prevent action which he does not want as well as being fortified at all times with pressure to put through the legislation he has described as necessary. Thus it is seen he is confronted with many complications which did not disturb him in the first two sessions of New Deal congresses and these complications mean a longer life for the current session.

Let us examine the status of the legislation which the President said must be passed. The

Some "Must" Legislation

The extension of the National Recovery administration is still far off. Senate hearings are just ended and the house is still further behind. No action can be expected in either body for several weeks. The present law expires June 16.

Recently Mr. Roosevelt sent to congress a very bitter message denouncing public utility holding companies and demanding legislation eliminating them from our economic structure. The house committee considering this legislation is still winding up its hearings and the senate committee which will have jurisdiction has taken no action at all. It must be said that a hard fight is in prospect if and when this legislation reaches the stage of debate because investors in these companies are not going to have their equities destroyed while they sit idly by. These investors are doing more now than just making faces at congress and the volume of letters which members are receiving in opposition to the holding companies legislation transcends anything that ever has happened in the memory of this correspondent.

The banking legislation which Mr. Roosevelt has proposed, or which was proposed for him by Governor Eccles, the New Deal and radical government of the federal reserve board is faced with opposition equally as bitter and as well organized as that confronting the holding companies bill. Perhaps it can be said that opposition to the banking legislation is even stronger because in that fight the President will be opposed by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who must be regarded as the most virulent of all the Democrats in the senate. The house banking committee has about done its job with hearings on this bill but the senate committee where the full force of the Glass opposition will be felt has not even set a date for committee consideration.

The social security bill about which Mr. Roosevelt has done much talking, because it is distinctly a reform measure, has finally been redrafted in the house while senate leadership is unable to get together on any policy respecting it. Some senators want to split up this bill and pass the section providing for old age pensions, allowing the other parts of the bill to die a slow death.

The legislation to increase by $1,750,000,000 the loaning power of the Home Owners Loan corporation probably will get through the senate without much more ado. The house passed the bill because it could not do otherwise with individual members realizing that there was a chance that some of this money would go into their particular districts. Included in this bill is a line that promises a good many hundred jobs for politicians and it is natural that the party in power is not going to overlook this possibility.

There remains on the "must" list, then, only the proposal to extend the nuisance taxes which expire at the end of June. It is probable that the bulk of these levies will be accepted by congress as necessary.

One cannot fail, in tramping around Washington these days, to note the frequent expressions concerning the outlook for the New Deal and for President Roosevelt's personal political future. In fact, some hardboiled observers lately have been heard to say that Mr. Roosevelt is suffering from too much ballyhoo. He was put up on a pedestal that made of him in the eyes of many persons something of a superman. He himself is regarded as having contributed to this condition by his many campaign promises, some of which he has found absolutely impractical as remedies in leading the country out of the morasses and on to a more satisfactory economic plain. In truth, the President's own political colleagues have continued to depict him as an individual capable of things which no human can accomplish and this combination of circumstances is declared by many keen minded persons as likely to bring, if indeed it has not already brought, a definitely bad political reaction from the President's standpoint.

It is still fresh in the minds of men and women throughout the country how President Hoover was over-advertised as a superior person in an administrative way. Mr. Hoover suffered from too much ballyhoo to an extent greater than any other man who has served as President with the possible exception of Woodrow Wilson. When the depression came and the current turned against Mr. Hoover he was utterly powerless. With a recalcitrant congress on his hands and a dissatisfied people, Mr. Hoover met the fate that must have been expected.

WHY SHOP-TALK IS SO POPULAR

Makes for Forgetfulness of One's Self.

One of the last arts to mature in a young society is the art of conversation. At its best, conversation is a kind of impromptu orchestra, each player improvising in perfect harmony, time and tune, tossing the theme from instrument to instrument, the themes developing and changing, discarded or resumed at the caprice of the players. This of course presupposes that the subject of the conversation be impersonal, that it be free to range pretty much over the whole field of human experience. Such conversation is first met with in the form of shop-talk, and the reason shop-talk among people of the same interests or profession (in which is included school studies) is so popular may be that here, perhaps for the first time, we learn how delightful it can be to exercise our minds in company with others to the total exclusion and forgetfulness of our tiresome selves. That is why students talk so eagerly about their school tasks, why business and professional people so madly discuss the minutiae of their trades; why artists, musicians and scholars persecute the public with their passionate dissertations. But there is a stage beyond this, where human interests are broad enough and deep enough to embrace everybody, where the whole of experience is the subject.

"Clever but indiscriminating," "undiscriminating because the past is not alive to them." "Highbrow? Anything rather than that!"—this is a good-natured appraisal of how our sophisticated New Yorkers make it appear to Europeans. The objection to them is that they do not know enough, either about the past or their own country. But the condition is temporary. A passion for learning has sprung up in our land since the war which, given time, should turn out a crop of men and women able to interpret America to Europe as it really is, and not as a glorified Wisconsin. After the fire of the World War, after the whirlwind of the Jazz decade, after the earthquake of the economic depression cometh the still small voice of the spirit—"Uncle Dudley," in the Boston Globe.
